

The Lord of the Sands of Time

ONLY THE PAST CAN SAVE THE FUTURE Sixty-two years after human life on Earth was annihilated by rampaging alien invaders, the enigmatic Messenger O is sent back in time with a mission to unite humanity of past eras--during the Second World War and ancient Japan, and even back to the dawn of the species itself--to defeat the invasion before it begins. However, in a future shredded by love and genocide, love waits for O. Will O save humanity only to doom himself? fabulous, borderline batty concept, with some wonderful wrinkles along the way [including references to the poet Robert Burns]... Now that's something we never expected to see in a Japanese SF novel. SFX After seeing humanity effectively wiped out in stream after stream, O is full of despair, but continues to try to save mankind. This determination, this self-sacrifice is one of the best parts of the book. Despite O being a kind of cyborg, he is fully human in his emotions. And he's willing to do just about anything to save even one timeline for humanity. He's a terrific character to hang the story on and is the driving force behind the main story line in feudal Japan. SFSignal.com... there's a stirring speech to the troops in the penultimate act that has the same punch as Shakespeare's St. Crispin's Day Speech. Yeah, that's right, I just referenced The Forever War and Henry V io9.com About the author: Issui Ogawa is known as one of Japan's premier SF writers. His 1996 debut, First a Letter from Popular Palace, won the Shueisha JUMP Novel Grand Prix. The Next Continent (2003, Haikasoru 2010, also available on iPad) garnered the 35th Seiun Prize. A collection of his short stories won the 2005 Best SF Poll, and The Drifting Man, included in that collection, was awarded the 37th Seiun Prize for domestic short stories. Other works include Land of Resurrection, Free Lunch Era, and The Lord of the Sands of Time (Haikasoru 2009). Ogawa is a principal member of the Space Authors Club.

We are committed to supporting your family during their grief, recognizing that grief is personal to each individual. We acknowledge we cannot make the pain go away, but through our efforts, we can make the grief journey less lonely and perhaps.. a little easier. Excellence We will strive to create the most personal and meaningful tribute to the person who died and support any appropriate requests to commemorate the life that was lived. Attention To Details Whether the service is in our chapel, your church, home or at the graveside - we offer ideas and options to make each service unique. Value We believe you should be able to pay your respects without paying your life's savings, that's why we offer our Fair Price Guarantee. Dignity No matter what type of service you choose, your loved one will be cared for with the same dignity and compassion that we would extend to our own family. Compassion We, too, are walking the journey of grief in our own family. So we understand, in ways that only someone who has gone through a great loss, could possibly know.
