

Lets Make It Real

Lets Make It Real is a book aimed to put forth the imagery of words to state the soulful tone of the day as to the restrictiveness, solitariness, willingness, permissiveness, tolerance, and moral of our changing religious culture. The purpose is to express the unrelenting, intemperate, and consuming effects of spiritual transformation and how we can be led from the right path or direction through shrewd or devious influence and variegation. Its intent is to express such in cadenced, swingly, metrical words, shaped with accompanied unison sequences, which are put into figurative and nonliteral imagery poetry. The purpose of such writing is to express the signs and condition of these times without the slow, ho-hum, boring continuance, and redundancy of our present-day reading materials. I press to deliver and drive home an arising, ascension, enliven, and stimulated desire, for you to skim over, reread, and interpret the underlining meaning of each selection in ones search for a closer, more intimate and meaningful relation with Christ. Hopefully, such method and technique will bring the response and desire for all to realize that we must face the realities of this life for our time is short, and we must make it real in order to be real with ourselves.
